

National Archives (M-34) Variant O-41

. . . AS THE ARTISTS SAW HIM. Goggle-eyed and well fed is Lincoln (above) after his face was worked over by an artist. This often published variant shows an almost vapid President. The print in the National Archives is from the Herbert Wells Fay retouched cabinet-size negative which the owner valued at $10,000.

A REVERSED, retouched tintype of German's photograph, preserved in its original case.

Lincoln National Life Foundation,
Fort Wayne Variant O-41

Variants—Retouched and Reversed

Courtesy Judge Carl E. Wahlstrom
Variant O-41

ANOTHER version of German's handsome photograph is this reversed tintype variant, a copy of which was personally presented by Lincoln in 1861 to Private Jerome W. Bell of the 11th Vermont Volunteers.

Meserve collection Variant O-41

PUBLISHED in 1894 by Herbert Wells Fay as the "McNulty-Butler Lincoln," this vignette portrait is merely another retouched version of the C. S. German 1861 photograph.